Young Socialists call annual conference

London, Apr. 2. Britain's Young Socialists today called for the resignation of Mr Hugh Gaitskell as leader of the Labour Party after a stormy debate at their annual conference.

The debate on party leadership touched off booing and cheering, with delegates standing to\shout down others across the hall.

The Young Socialists carried a resolution urging Mr Gaitskell's resignation by 189 votes to 113 after one speaker had said there was "a monster loose in this party" and another that he thought it farcical that "the so-called leader" should openly oppose decisions of the party's annual conference. (Mr Guitskell warned the annual conference of the British Labour Party last October that he and his Parliamentary colleagues would fight with all the means in their power against the conference's resolution demanding unilateral renunciation of all nuclear weapons.)

The vote against Gaitskell came 24 hours after the Cooperative Party renflirmed its policy of opposition to nuclear weapons and called on Britain to quit all its military pacts-including Nato and Seato. The 11 million-strong Co-operative Party is represented in Parliament under the banner of the Labour

Its policy statement, proclaimed at a conference in the resort of Weston-super-Mare on Saturday, was generally in accord with the official Labour defence line laid down at the Labour Party conference last

However, it is not Gaitskell's policy. As leader of the Party's parliamentary delegation and a firm believer in the nuclear deterrent, Gaitskell has refused to accept the dictates of the conference.-Reuter and AP.

Britain develops revolutionary smokeless

London, Apr. 2. Britain's Coal Board believes that it has found a new fuel. Made from coal that will curb the use of imported fuel-oil, it was disclosed today.

This new revolutionary fuel tras been developed at the Cheltenham Unboratories by a Precision instrument group of scientists. It is a novel "smokeless fuel" in the form of a briquette made from coal. It has very high calorific power, superior to that of ordinary coal and has the enormous advantage of burning without producing any smoke. The inventors are Dm Jacob Bronowski and Arthur Wynn hend of the Coal Board's Scientific Research Bureau, They said that similar research work had been carried out for years past in several other countries but that results had not been up to the standard of the British

Tokyo's International Christian University now has a library which is unique in the Far East, both for its structure and its method of operation. Designed by Antonia Raymond, it combines the best of the functional and practical with the aesthetic and artistic. Inside, the library is laid out on the "open-stack" system, modified to suit a bilingual academy. The borrowing rate is the remarkably high one of 90 books per student a year - more than double the average rate in the United States. The building is finished in polished cast concrete, and is completely airconditioned. Picture shows top: The new library building at the Tokyo International Christian University. HOME CRITICISED Improvement costs `extortionate'

London, Apr. 2. A Scottish Labour Member of Parliament wants Princess Margaret and her husband, Mr Antony Armstrong-Jones, to give up their plans for moving house.

The MP. Mr William Hamilton, considers the cost of improvements considered necessary to the couple's new home at Kensington Palace are "quite extortionate."

He is to question! the Minister of Works, Lord John Hope, about the matter.

The Princess and her husband live rent-free in a small house at Kensington Palace at present which has always been regarded as a temporary home.

Derelict

Their new house is much bigger, but has not been occupied since 1939 and is near-derelict. About £70,000 is to be spent on it before it will be ready for the couple at the end of next

Most of the sum £50,000 will come from money voted by parliament for the upkeep of royal palaces. The remaining £20,000 will be paid by Queen Elizabeth.

The new home will have plenty of room for a nursery and for Princess Margaret's staff, some of whom have to live out at present because the accommodation at their present home is not big cnough.

Campaign

Mr Hamilton told reporters: "It seems to me they are quite" edequately housed now, and in the meantime while there is a tremendous campaign going on for saving public money this might be one example where the economy could be assisted." Mr Hamilton will also ask what has been the cost of maintaining all Britain's Royal palaces in each of the last 10 years and what steps are being kept within bounds."

A Works Ministry estimate published this week put the FASHION across the Atlantic once a one-way traffic . . . now, each year, America's influence on women's clothes spreads more surely all over the world. Why?

And what have the top couturiers of New York in store for us?

Barbara Griggs has made this Journey into a woman's World to find out.

Today you can start reading her report . . .

HOW TO SAY DRINKS ON THE TERRACE IN AMERICAN: Sydney Wragge's throwaway twopiece in heavy white silk printed in dull olive, with a tuck-in olive scarf bonus. The easy blazer top goes over a skirt you can step into-because it has an clasticised waist. English note: the girl wearing it is top London model. Sheila Lynch, now working in New York and booked solid, and herself a devotee of Wragge clothes.

New York.

FIVE years ago what happened in the fashion world this side of the Atlantic was of precious little moment to us in England. They had, we knew, invented the shirtwaister; they were jolly good at junk- jewellery, their ready-to-wear was dazzlingly cheap, if not as well-made as ours.

_And friends who had made the trip came back with mouth-watering accounts of gaiety, colour and glittering stores. Today I believe we can no longer afford not to know what's going on in the fashion business here.

For 10 breathless days I've been absorbing the American message. I've talked to top designers and leafed through collections in their large airy salons; I've plunged into the Seventh Avenue ragtrade jungle where 50 floors of skyscrapers are crammed with 300 firms trading ideas for breadand-butter.

And I've met the high-powered women who have more say in the economic life of their country than an English Cabinet Minister.

I've emerged from it: all with the clear-cut conviction, that American wholesale design-has reached a moment of challenge.

In the first place America has a dazzling new First Lady and although Jackie Kennedy has declared that "ambition to become a fashion leader is right at the bottom of my totem pole,' she turned the spotlight on native American design to a stimulating degree. Américan designers are reacting vigorously to the challenge of a First Lady bestdresser who dresses native intend of hopping off to Paris every six months (just how vigorously is perhaps best illustrated by the fact that Oleg Cassini, her No. 1 designer, was in Washington recently to argue that American designers -even wholesale as most of them are, should protect their designs from piracy by legal means. "If France can protect its designers, we can, too."). Second: There is the beginning of a strong reaction against the tyranny of Paris-"those bi-annual occasions when French showmanship and American insecurity come together with a resounding Wagnerian clash,' as one designer put it.

And Oleg Cassini slated "lazy designers who run to Paris twice a year to copy madly."

At its clean, active uninhibited best, American design owes nothing to Paris - and the most exciting clothes I've seen were nearly always pro- n snift of the Faubourg St American fashlon has lessons to freely, and America is boosting duced by designers who never Honore about them. its export business. set foot in a Paris salon — a Ronc When English store-keepers thought our own wholesale and designers are travelling houses might profitably ponder.

Happy Valley...... South China...... BLIMEY! — WHAT A THRILLER

South China saved by penalty-kick in the closing seconds

By I. M. MacTAVISH

This game had everything: everything, that is, except a decisive result. As a spectacle it was magnificent in its glittering climax. It had drama . . . thrills . . . disappointments . . tragedy . . skill highlights . . . low lights controversy . . . personalities . . spills . . . and a final minute of tension that will surely never be forgotten by the thousands of fans who packed the Hongkong Stadium to the rafters or countless thousands more on their often precarious perches on the surrounding hillsides.

In the end a strange justice was done. After 110 gruelling minutes the scoreboard still read South China . . . 1, Happy Valley . . . 1. That to my mind was justice for neither side deserved to lose, yet South China, as long as they live, will never be nearer to defeat. In fact they saved their reputation in the most exciting fashion-with penalty-kick-when only seconds of the original time were left for

LESTER PIGGOTT AIMS TO REMAIN BRITAIN'S CHAMPION JOCKEY

It took Gordon Richards more than 25 years to win the Derby. Before he had even reached his 25th birthday, Lester Piggott had won it three times, scored in all the other four classics and finished up the 1960 fint-racing

Now, with the start of the 1961 season, many people believe that Piggott will win his fourth Derby, his time on Pinturischio.

Earns a lot

It is no secret, of course, that he earns a lot of money, but his critics would like to think of him accumulating it relentlessly, grimly, and not joking about it. What do his fellow jockeys think of him?

It would be foolish to pretend that he has always been the most popular figure in the Frequently, some jockey or other, probably older than him, has grumbled at something Lester has done in a race. "He hit me on the head with his whip" or "He practically put me over the rails" are complaints that I have heard against But when I have asked the objector whether he proposed to do anything about it, he would invariably follow up with something like. "It was only over-keenness

... I might have done the same niyself."

His rivalry with such as Dong Smith and Harry Carr is very strong, basically, but they are fond of him and realise that his only fault is a slightly over-developed will to win-if indeed that is a fault at all.

For Lester Piggott, the season will be a period of hard

WOIK. Jockeys work long hours; up with the lark for riding out with the first lot, a quick breakfast, possibly ride out ngain, off to the ruces-perhaps twice if there is an evening meeting -and home again for dinner, the one square meal of the day... Lester lives frugally in his house, Florizel, at Newmarket. During the season he travels a great deal, much of it by air, to the various race meetings.

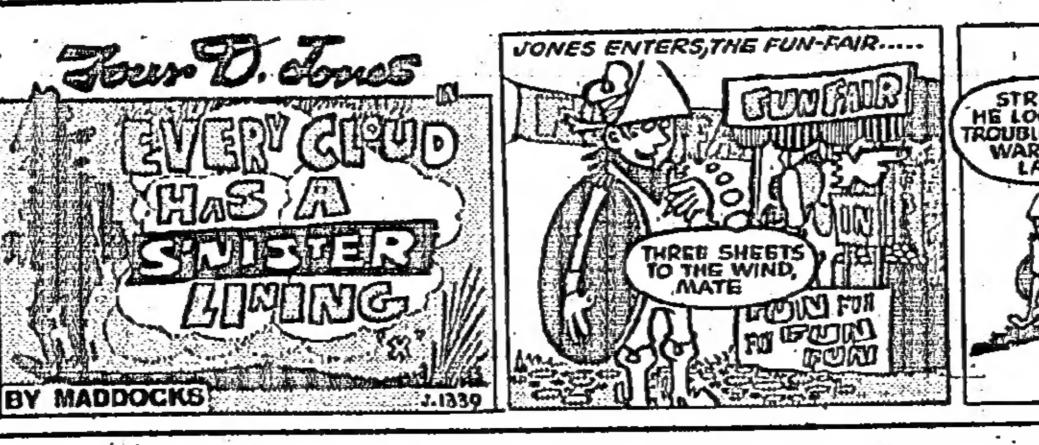

Many racing people thought he might be satisfied with his 1960 championship season and take things easier this year. He has no intention of rolaxing, though, as I learned when asked-him what he thought of his chances of being champion "Just as good as they were in 1900," he replied.

A total of 59 lots of Crown land in various parts of the urban areas are being made available by Government for sale at public auction in the next six months.

These lots range in size from a small residential site of 360 square feet at Salyingpun to a large residential area of 58,930 square feet just off Tin Hau Temple-road and a a hotel site of 25,000 square feet in Wongneichong-road. A further programme of land sales in the sixmonth period beginning on Tuesday, April 4, has been released by the Public Works Department. The programme shows that many of the lots to be disposed of are in areas where there is a keen demand for land for private commercial and industrial development.

The sites include some 400,000 square feet of factory land at places like Kun Tong, Tai Kok Tsul, Chungshawan and Chai Wan, 200,000 sq ft of land for high density residential and commercial use as well as 100,000 sq ft of land for medium and low density housing and about 100,000 sq ft for misoclianeous purposes.

Copies of the sales programme, as well as general plans and photographs showing where the various lots are located, are now on display at the Crown Lands and Survey Office, Public Works Department, Lower Albert-road, and at the Government Branch Offices in Farm-road, Kowloon.

The above Government Information Services map shows the whereabouts of the sites to be sold.

Easter is one of the two great festivals of the Church, the other being Christmas, and to some it is the greater of the two and should rightly be regarded so. Easter has a message to us Christians that inspires hope.

As you rightly say, Good Friday in an awesome (and awful) occasion, reminding us of the agony and pain the Principal Actor in the case had gone through.

To the non-believers Easter may be a myth, but to the less sophisticated Christians it is full of meaning, and Easter Day is an occasion for refolding that should excel Christmas, for it denotes the
